Dear Brethren:

On behalf of the Administration and workers of the South Caribbean Conference, I bring you Christian greetings.

As a church we denounce the death of innocent men and women in this country and in others places around the world. In recent days, the killing of George Floyd at the hands of two police officers in Minnesota, USA has caused us to think about our own situation in Trinidad and Tobago. As a church we must do more to reach out to our boys, girls, men and women who are at risk, who continue to be plagued by the scourge of drugs, gun violence, gang warfare, family violence and give them purpose and hope.

The preaching of the Three Angels Messages must be our goal and focus. It is expected that in the not too distant future we will see the re-opening of our churches. This re-opening must be heralded as a time for evangelization, as we once again go out to the highways and the by-ways and beckon men to come. To this end we have spoken to our Ministerial Workers about doing post shutdown, post COVID-19 soul winning activities in our churches and communities, including the virtual community.

I urge each of us to get ready and get involved as we appeal to men and women, boys and girls. The events of recent months tell us that Jesus is soon to come, to take His watchful pilgrims home. Let us ensure that through our vigorous evangelism, we will help all peoples regardless of race, culture or nationality to make it into the kingdom. Let us plan and work together for bountiful evangelistic results post shutdown, post COVID-19.

May God bless you.

Yours in the Master's Service
